

GUIDE TO DONATING FOR CHARITY

HOW TO MAKE YOUR DECISIONS BASED ON FACT NOT POPULARITY

By: Dr. Anthony G. Beck

© 2014 by Balance Protocol Institute

All rights reserved. No portion of this book may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical—including fax, photocopy, recording, or any information storage and retrieval system—without the written permission of the author.

This publication contains the opinions and ideas of the author. It is intended to provide helpful and informative material on the subjects addressed in the publication. It is provided with the understanding that the author and publisher are not engaged in rendering medical, health, psychological, or any other kind of personal professional services in this publication.

The author and publisher specifically disclaim all responsibility for any liability, loss, or risk, personal or otherwise, that is incurred as a consequence, directly, or indirectly, of the use and application of any of the contents of this guide.

This guide is not intended to provide professional or financial advice. Readers are advised to consult their own professionals regarding this topics covered. The author shall not be held liable or responsible for any misunderstanding or misuse of the information contained in this program or for any loss, damage, or injury caused or alleged to be caused directly or indirectly by any action, or application of any information discussed in this guide. The statements in this guide have not been evaluated by any governmental agency for correctness.

To request permission for reproduction or speaking engagements, contact:

Dr. Anthony G. Beck
Balance Protocol Institute
9300 Conroy-Windermere Road #73 Windermere FL 34876
E-mail: dranthonygbeck@gmail.com

The following information is provided to inform and educate the compassionate conscious individual(s) seeking to support and bring about positive change through donating time, talents and finances to charitable organizations.

Learning and understanding the following information contained in this guide will place the diligent individual shoulders above the average person in thoughtful charitable choices. Even having said that, the author does not want you to simply believe what he believes. You are strongly encourage to question, research and find out what knowledge must submit to your own individual purpose and focus. NOT ONE charity can conclusively advocate for all things compassion worthy and appropriate for YOU.

WARNING!

This guide may cause you to question everything you know about charitable organizations. It may bring into question the very basis of what you have been told to think all the while being based on popular societal misdirection.

Before you possibly get upset at the information revealed in this guide, realize that I'm only the messenger sharing solid facts that you can either blindly ignore or sadly accept. It is my intention to simply provide proper prospective to those who have always wanted to be charitable but do not know where or how to approach such a wonderful loving decision.

Before donating to any charity, you want to be sure that the lion's share of the money will go where it's needed. Every charity has different overhead costs. You can research you favorite charities -- learning how much of your donation will go to the intended purpose (vs. how much will go to overhead) at Give.org, CharityWatch.org and CharityNavigator.org. Here are some more important tips to keep in mind:

- Don't give cash. Legitimate charities will take a check
- Don't give credit card, bank account or personal information to telemarketers. If you want to donate, initiate the call yourself.
- Don't give to Internet appeals if the cause does not look legitimate and doesn't check out. Traditional frauds have gone electronic in recent years, giving con artists easy access to thousands of potential victims.
- Don't give in to pressure or sob stories. Anyone that can't wait for a donation while you check out his or her organization is likely to be a fraud.
- Expect specific information. Ask what kind of relief this organization is going to provide. Don't give to a vague appeal.
- Check out the charity with national, state and local authorities. Established charities register with the Internal Revenue Service. You can search for specific non-profit organizations on the IRS website, irs.gov.
- Beware of newly formed organizations. If the charity is new, you may have to rely on your relationship with the company or sponsor of the organization to determine whether you trust the group.
- Report abuses to the nearest Better Business Bureau and the State Attorney General's office. You can also report abuses to the National Fraud Information Center at (800) 876-7060. NFIC also has a web-based complaint form at fraud.org.
- Do give. Experts agree that needs will be great both now and in the months to come.

Before Giving to a Charity

If you're considering a request for a donation to a charity, do some research before you give. By finding out as much as you can about the charity, you can avoid fraudsters who try to take advantage of your generosity. Here are tips to help make sure your charitable contributions are put to good use. For more information, visit ftc.gov/charityfraud.

Signs of a Charity Scam

These days, charities and fundraisers (groups that solicit funds on behalf of organizations) use the phone, face-to-face contact, email, the internet (including social networking sites), and mobile devices to solicit and obtain donations. Naturally, scammers use these same methods to take advantage of your goodwill. Regardless of how they reach you, avoid any charity or fundraiser that:

- Refuses to provide detailed information about its identity, mission, costs, and how the donation will be used.
- Won't provide proof that a contribution is tax deductible.
- Uses a name that closely resembles that of a better-known, reputable organization.
- Thanks you for a pledge you don't remember making.
- Uses high-pressure tactics like trying to get you to donate immediately, without giving you time to think about it and do your research.
- Asks for donations in cash or asks you to wire money.
- Offers to send a courier or overnight delivery service to collect the donation immediately.
- Guarantees sweepstakes winnings in exchange for a contribution. By law, you never have to give a donation to be eligible to win a sweepstakes.
-

Charity Checklist

Take the following precautions to make sure your donation benefits the people and organizations you want to help.

- Ask for detailed information about the charity, including name, address, and telephone number.
- Get the exact name of the organization and do some research. Searching the name of the organization online — especially with the word “complaint(s)” or “scam”— is one way to learn about its reputation.
- Call the charity. Find out if the organization is aware of the solicitation and has authorized the use of its name. The organization’s development staff should be able to help you.
- Find out if the charity or fundraiser must be registered in your state by contacting the National Association of State Charity Officials.
- Check if the charity is trustworthy by contacting the Wise Giving Alliance, Charity Navigator, Charity Watch, or GuideStar.
- If asked to donate from being called, ask if the caller is a paid fundraiser. If so, ask:
 - The name of the charity they represent
 - The percentage of your donation that will go to the charity
 - How much will go to the actual cause to which you’re donating
 - How much will go to the fundraiser
- Keep a record of your donations.
- Make an annual donation plan. That way, you can decide which causes to support and which reputable charities should receive your donations.
- Visit this Internal Revenue Service \(IRS\) webpage to find out which organizations are eligible to receive tax deductible contributions.
- Know the difference between “tax exempt” and “tax deductible.” Tax exempt means the organization doesn’t have to pay taxes. Tax deductible means you can deduct your contribution on your federal income tax return.
- Never send cash donations. For security and tax purposes, it’s best to pay by check — made payable to the charity.

- Never wire money to someone claiming to be a charity. Scammers often request donations to be wired because wiring money is like sending cash: once you send it, you can't get it back.
- Do not provide your credit or check card number, bank account number or any personal information until you've thoroughly researched the charity.
- Be wary of charities that spring up too suddenly in response to current events and natural disasters. Even if they are legitimate, they probably don't have the infrastructure to get the donations to the affected area or people.
- If a donation request comes from a group claiming to help your local community (for example, local police or firefighters), ask the local agency if they have heard of the group and are getting financial support.
- What about texting? If you text to donate, the charge will show up on your mobile phone bill. If you've asked your mobile phone provider to block premium text messages — texts that cost extra — then you won't be able to donate this way.

Charities and the Do Not Call Registry

The National Do Not Call Registry gives you a way to reduce telemarketing calls, but it exempts charities and political groups. However, if a fundraiser is calling on behalf of a charity, you may ask not to get any more calls from, or on behalf of, that specific charity. If those calls continue, the fundraiser may be subject to a fine.

Report Charity Scams

If you think you've been the victim of a charity scam or if a fundraiser has violated Do Not Call rules, file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission. Your complaints can help detect patterns of wrong-doing and lead to investigations and prosecutions.